The Bishop left the church after announcing Father O'Flaherty'

> The following day several of the congrega tion were arrested for disturbing religious worship. They were acquitted after a jury trial in the police court. On Sunday, Feb. 28 Stabop McQuaid again attempted to put Father Kavanagh in charge, but again the congregation resisted. The Bishop ther declared the church closed.

the police force and two companies of the Forty-ninth Regiment, N.C., S. N. Y., tanded the church over to Bishop McQaid and Father Kavanagh.

This ended the difficulty over the church. Pather O'Flaherty appealed to Rome, but was beaten. He then sued Bishop McQuaid for $20,000 damages for alleged libel, but withdrew the case from the docket before it came to this.
